

Vox Interna Singing Workshop 2025 - NL

Dáithí Ó Nuanáin (Anúna)

25 October – 26 October 2025 the Akoesticum (Ede, NL)

Again, in 2025 Vox Interna will organise a multi-day workshop, with songs of the Irish Anúna Ensemble. During more than 30 years the artistic director of Anúna, Michael McGlynn, composed and arranged an impressive and diverse repertoire. From 2014 onwards, Anúna got involved in organising workshops for amateur singers, which resulted in the development of the so-called Anúna Technique in which breath, posture, voice building and voice projection take a central place.

Participants are expected to study pieces thoroughly to be sung by heart and without a conductor during the final presentation. For some this might feel scary, but in the end, one appears to remember more than expected. The secret: Unison of breath, listening to each other and above all, not to be scared to make mistakes. 'That is where the magic starts...' as a participant of the Anúna Summer School in Dublin stated.

We change the repertoire annually: sometimes pieces pop up again, but there are always new surprises included in the workshops. The 2025 programme will be determined in February. On the adjoining page you will find some QR-codes and hyperlinks which represent a selection of songs that have been included in previous workshops.

After five years in Rotterdam, it has been decided to move the workshop Eastwards, to the . The chosen location is the Akoesticum, situated near the train station of Ede, at 40 km. from the German border. There are different Hotel facilities nearby.

For new participants an a Capella audio-recording is mandatory for admission. Although we assume that you can sing in tune, we want to hear your voice in advance so we can fit you in properly in the community of singers that will attend the workshop.

Costs: € 250 (incl. coffee/tea and two lunches) - € 175 until 30 years of age

Times: 09:30 – 17:00 hours
